OVERVIEW

Early Years Practitioners work in private and public settings with children from birth to age five. They plan and deliver daily activities, play opportunities, and educational programmes while ensuring children's welfare, care, and development.

Working as part of a professional team under the guidance of an Early Years Educator, teacher, or senior colleague, they support both child-led and adult-led learning based on individual needs and interests. Practitioners also work closely with parents, carers, and other professionals, taking responsibility for safeguarding, health, safety, and responding to emergencies within the setting.
